There lives in a wilderness section The of this (Columbia) county a hermit. He has wielded a destructive knife and revolver in half a score of trage expecting to be assassinated. This man, who has forfeited the companionship of marking is much as forfeited the companions of the co ionship of mankind, is guarded by animals that are well trained watchmen. He has a magic control of the brute creation, and owns six goats and an equal number of dogs. His lonely cabin stands in the middle of a fifteen acre field. When he goes to plowing three of the dogs are placed at each side of the field at his row's

tor. If found to be a friend one word from the hermit silences both goats and dogs and the guest is invited in. Thus guarded the desperate man says he sleeps more securely than the czar, because, unlike the imperial cohorts of the latter, his faithful sentinels cannot be bribed or otherwise rendered unsafe by collusion with their owner's enemies.—Magnolia (Ark.)
